Question: 7

The city manager is considering outfitting all patrol cars with new emergency light systems. One company says their design incorporates a newly developed system of colors and patterns that can significantly improve visibility, reducing delays and accidents involving patrol cars. The city manager agreed to install the system on four patrol cars for 30 days, and if at the end of the trial response times for those four cars have been cut by an average of 15 seconds or more, she will authorize the purchase of a system for all patrol cars.

The benchmark, or the average response time before the trial that the test results would be measured against, was 10:00. At the end of the trial, Car 1 had an average response time of 10:06, Car 2 had an average response time of 9:39, Car 3 had an average response time of 9:37, and Car 4 had an average response time of 9:45. Which of the following is true of the average response time of the cars in the trial?

- A. It was lower than the benchmark by 15.5 seconds
- B. It was higher than the benchmark by 15.5 seconds
- C. It was lower than the benchmark by 12.5 seconds
- D. It was higher than the benchmark by 12.5 seconds

Answer: C

Explanation:

To answer this question, you'll need to do some math. First, convert the average times into seconds. There are sixty seconds in a minute, so 10:07 becomes 607 seconds, 9:40 is 580, 9:37 is 577, and 9:46 is 586. Adding these together gives you 2350 seconds. Divide by four to get the average, which is 587.5. Then divide 587.5 by 60 to convert it back into minutes, which produces 9, with a remainder of 47.5. So the average response time for the patrol cars in the trial was 9:47.5 seconds. This is 12.5 seconds lower than the benchmark of 10:00.

Question: 8

After learning that its budget wouldn't increase from the previous year due to municipal belt-tightening, the police department in one city was looking for ways to be more effective without spending more money. They decided to park empty patrol cars near stretches of roads which had high accident rates due to speeding. The empty cars would be close enough to be a visible deterrent, but far enough away from the road that it wasn't obvious that the cars were empty. At first, this worked well, and the accident rate declined for a few months. However, drivers eventually realized that the cars were empty, and speed picked up again, as did the accident rate. Then the department began randomly posting officers in cars where the empty cars had been and rotating between manned and unmanned cars on an unpredictable basis. It took a few months, but after drivers began to realize that they could never be sure if the patrol cars were manned or not, they began slowing down again, and the accident rate once again declined.

Which of these pairs of months had the same number of accidents?

- A. January and September
- B. February and June
- C. May and November
- D. June and August

Answer: D

Explanation:

June and August both had 12 accidents. None of the other pairs had the same number of accidents. January had 10 and September had 9, making A wrong. February had 11 and June had 10, so B is wrong. May had 8 and November had 5, so C is incorrect.
